WOMAN HURT IN ACCIDENT AT MT. VICTORY

Miss Bernice Coughlin in Kenton Hospital; Condition Critical.

WELL KNOWN IN MARION

Music Teacher Figures in Train-Auto Crash When Car Stalls on Tracks.

Miss Bernice Coughlin of Mt. Victory, well-known pianist and piano teacher here, is in critical condition in McKelrick hospital in Kenton from injuries suffered when she was struck by a westbound passenger train at Mt. Victory shortly before noon today.

When her automobile stalled on the railroad tracks in the path of the train, Miss Coughlin screamed and leaped from the machine. The train struck her automobile, then caught her. Her injuries include laceration and possible fracture of the skull and a compound fracture of one leg. She was rushed to the hospital at Kenton.

She was alone in the automobile when it stalled on the Big Four tracks. She was driving south when the accident happened. Miss Coughlin was enroute to Belle Center to conduct a music class.

Miss Coughlin has a piano studio at 220 East Church street here, and has appeared on many programs of the Marion Lecture-Radiol club, of which she was a member.

The passenger train that struck Miss Coughlin passed through the village half an hour after the Roosevelt Special had gone through on its way to St. Louis.

The Big Four station agent at Mt. Victory said that Miss Coughlin's body was hurled 50 feet by the impact, and that her automobile was dragged 300 feet down the track.

EXHIBITS AT COUNTY FAIR AT HIGH MARK

Space Filled on Opening Day and Erection of Tents May Be Necessary.

Fifteen hundred persons busied themselves with the preparation of exhibits and the erection of tents, shows and displays as final arrangements for the eighty-second annual Marion county fair were completed today.

Although the fair started today, most of those on the grounds were not spectators. Exhibits rapidly filled available space and the board at noon was considering the advisability of erecting tents to shelter part of the exhibits.

Approximately 150 harness horses were on the grounds today. C. G.
Ritzler, secretary, said. Eighteen horses have been entered in the 2:25 trot, the first race event of the fair, to take place Wednesday afternoon.

to enter school this year by action of the city board of education last night.

were six on or before the Jan. 1
following the opening of the school term were eligible to enter first

DEMOCRATS IN RULE AS MAINE COUNTS VOTE

Election of Governor and Two of Three Congressmen Is Assured.

ENDS LONG G. O. P. RULE

Republican Dominancy in State Unbroken for 18 Years.

By The Associated Press
PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 12.—
Democrats in Maine elected a governor yesterday for the first time in 18 years. They also elected two of the state's delegation of three in the house of representatives.

Louis J. Brann, Democratic candidate for governor, had a lead of 1,387 over Burleigh Martin, Republican, as but 18 of the state's 632
precincts were unreported.

Returns at 11:30 a. m. gave in 511 out of 632 precincts:
For congress: first district complains: Beedy (R.) 40,987; Connolly (D.) 33,714.

Second district 209 out of 213:
Moran (D.) 41,790; Nelson (R.)
20,774; Bonney (Ind. R.) 1,649.

Third district, 250 out of 274 precincts: Ulbrich (D.) 34,386;
Brewster (R.) 33,328.

The Democrats turned out the largest vote they had ever recorded while the number of Republican ballots fell far below the number cast in 1920, 1924 and 1928—the last three presidential years.

The Democrats made severe inroads on the Republicans in state and county offices also.

Two Second and Third district contests saw two men, long leaders in Republican politics and office holders for many years, going down to defeat.

Congressman John E. Nelson, for many years in the house of representatives, was traveling behind E.
Carl Moran Jr., twice turned down by the voters of the state while he was the Democratic candidate for governor.

CITY COUNCIL TO ASK 2-MILL RELIEF LEVY

Voters Will Get Tax Proposal at November Election: To Run One Year.

Called Only Solution

Mayor Declares There Is No
Other Answer to Problem;
Would Raise $50,000.

Declaring it to be the only solution to the problem of raising money for poor relief purposes, city council last night voted unanimously for a two-mill (tax levy for 1933.
The levy will be submitted to the voters at the November election and if adopted will be added to the city tax rate for next June and December. It is estimated the levy would yield between $30,000 and $60,000.

"I can see no other solution to the problem," Mayor Phillips told members of the council last night.
"The $25,000 received from the recent county relief bond issue has been used to pay on the city's $41-000 grocery bill. The only money available in the future for poor relief purposes will be that received from the gasoline and automobile license tax and what might be transferred from the general fund," the mayor said.

Approved Unanimously

Members of council were unanimous in their approval of the levy.
It approved by the voters this fall.
The money raised from the levy,
City Solicitor Carter Patton said, will be deducted from the $100,000 for poor relief purposes asked for by the city in its budget for 1933
now in the hands of the budget commission. The levy would be for the one year only.

A resolution providing for the levy was ordered submitted to the board of deputy state supervisors of elections of the county to be placed on the ballot this fall.

Although the resolution providing for the levy specifies that the money shall be used for operating expenses, the money will be used exclusively for poor relief purposes, members of council said.
The law governing the levying of a special tax, it was explained by City Solicitor Patton requires that the resolution specify the money will be used for general operating expenses. The explanation was made by the solicitor after Councilman Henry O'Dowd had questioned the wording of the resolution.

One Other Source

Money for poor relief purposes could be raised from only one other source, aside from the gasoline tax, if the levy should fail to pass, the city solicitor said. The money would have to be taken from the general fund. This plan, it was pointed out by the solicitor,
would simply mean that no money for operating expenses would be available and the city would be unable to pay the salaries of the city employees or its other expenses.

FERRY BLAST TOLL INCREASED TO 56

By The Associated Press
NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Ten bodies came to the surface of the East river today in the vicinity
where the labor ferry Observation sank last Friday morning after her huller exploded.

Those brought the total of known dead in the disaster to 26.
Of the original list of those believed to have been on the boat and reported missing, nine remained unaccounted for today.
Twenty-eight injured were still in hospitals.

Deficit Reported

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—A deficit of $2,015,724 in the accounts of In-sull Utility Investments, Inc., was reported to the federal district court today by auditors for the receivers.

ROME IS THEIR GOAL

Above are pictured Dr. Leon M. Piccilli (right) and William Ulrich and Miss Edna Newcomer, who took off today on a pre-posed flight from New York to Rome in their plane "The American Nurse." (Associated Press Photo.)

2 MEN, WOMAN OFF ON FLIGHT TO ROME

Woodchuck Taken Along "for Ride" as Trio Starts Hazardous 4,200-Mile Trip.

around the world, but has been rebuffed and delayed.
An object of the flight, announced by Dr. Piccilli, is to encourage nurses and physicians to take up flying and parachute jumping as they may be prepared for quick emergency work in floods and other disasters.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—A doctor, a veteran pilot, a girl parachute jumper and a woodchuck called "Tail Wind" hopped off at 6:18 a. m. today on an announced attempt to fly non-stop to Rome.

Before taking off from Floyd Bennett field on the 4,200 mile jaunt, Dr. Leon M. Piccilli of Tonharr, N. Y., commander of the expedition said the plane would head out over the Atlantic at Cape Cod and fly the "northern" route.

He said Miss Edna Newcomer, 22-year-old, burnette from Williamsport, Pa., would step out of the plane with a parachute over Florence, Italy, as a tribute to Florence Nightingale, the Joan of Arc of the nursing profession. Miss Newcomer studied nursing before she turned to parachute jumping.

Woman With No Cash
William Ulrich of Mineola, N.
Y., piloted the plane, named "The American Nurse," but Miss Newcomer expected to relieve him as co-commander. Dr. Piccilli said he would make medical observations of the effect of a trans-Atlantic flight on the plane's occupants, including "Tail Wind," the doctor's pet.

The plane carries no radio.
Weather for the flight was pre-announced ideal.
"Tail Wind," found by Dr.
Piccilli on a Westchester roadway suffering from a broken leg, is not going back to health, he is a carbon just for the ride. He is a carbon monoxide detector. Dr. Piccilli said he has a theory that some of the planes lost on trans-Atlantic flights fell because the cabins filled with deadly gas. If "Tail Wind" shows signs of unusual sleepiness the doctor will figure danger is near.

Besides 550 gallons of gasoline, the plane carried a hypodermic needle, a stethoscope, a shaving outfit, a signaling pistol, flare bombs, field glasses, smelling salts, tea, tablets, honey to sweeten the tea, three chickens, tomatoes, fruit, two gallons of water, lamba wool and almond oil to stuff the ears and an aviation blood inventory by the doctor.

Will Head Toward Spain Ulrich, former barnstormer and aviation instructor, planned to sight Europe first at Flanders, the northern tip of Spain. He is an experienced pilot with a transport license and 3,000 hours in the air to his credit.

The plane is the one which Herndon and Pangborn flew

APPEAL OF DOOMER ASSASSIN IS DENIED

Congress Scheduled To Meet Death on Calistoga Tomorrow.

By The Associated Press
PARIS, Sept. 12.—President Albert Lebrun rejected the final appeal for the life of Dr. Paul Gongouff, slayer of former President Paul Doumer, today and the man was ordered sentenced to death tomorrow.

Even before formal announcement of the execution, Father G.
del, a priest of the Greek orthodox church, arrived to administer last rites of Gougouff.

HUTCHINSONS AND CREW OF PLANE RESCUED

But Craft Is Wrecked When Forced Down by Leaking
Gasoline Tank.

FOUND BY BRITISH SHIP

Were Afloat Two Days, Hutchinson Says in Message to Manager.

By The Associated Press
ANAGNAGALLI, GREENLAND, Sept. 12.—Wrecked on the beach less than 40 miles from here, George Hutchinson and the seven who were flying with him from New York to London were rescued
today by the British trawler Lord Talbot.

A leaking gasoline tank forced them down in the water of Ikroak fiord. But the plane was wrecked on one of the reefs which make navigation of the little bay perilous.

Hutchinson, his wife, their two children and the crew of four men waded ashore and reached the tiny Eskimo settlement of Ikroak, whose few inhabitants would have abandoned the plane and returned to Anagnagalli for the winter in a few more weeks.

Eskimo sealers assisted them in saving their instruments and most of their supplies.

The castaways were taken aboard
the Lord Talbot and Captain Watson, master of the trawler, awaited orders from his owners in Aberdeen whether to bring them here,
drop them at Iceland or carry them on to Scotland.

Afloat Two Days, Hutchinson Reports

By The Associated Press
NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—In a wireless message received here today by Herbert Mathias, manager of flying Hutchinson family whose airplane was wrecked near Anagnag-alli, Greenland, George Hutchinson said his party had been afloat
in the icy waters for two days.

Hutchinson said the ship had been swamped but that much of it was being salvaged and taken aboard the British trawler Lord Talbot, which came to the rescue of Hutchinson, his wife, two daughters and the four men flying with him from New York to London.

Mathias said the eight would probably proceed to England and return by boat from there. He said Hutchinson announced in his message from the Lord Talbot this morning that he expected to return to America, Sept. 30.

None of the members of the group suffered any ill effects from the accident, Hutchinson told Mathias.

Found at Tiny Eskimo Settlement

By The Associated Press
COPENHAGEN, Sept. 12.—All eight members of the party of the flying family of Hutchinsons were safe and well when they were found today by the trawler Lord Talbot. It was reported here, but the airplane "City of Richmond" in which they set out from the United States for Europe was wrecked.

The broken ship lay at the bottom of Ikroak valley, Greenland, and the travelers were found at Ikroak, or Ikroak, a tiny Eskimo settlement nearby, 37 miles southwest of Anagnagalli.

Fortunately for them some of the inhabitants were still there. Ikroak is populated during the summer and autumn, but seldom during the winter.

Before word of their rescue reached here the newspaper Posten, commenting on the flight, declared that even if the Hutchinsons were found the Danish government already has been fully justified in refusing permission for their landing in Greenland. The flight served no useful purpose, other than official or practical, but was mainly a sensational stunt, the editorial said.

It added that the government
learned from previous experience what elaborate precautions are required for a flight over Greenland and also what it costs to send rescue expeditions when such flights fail.

"Flights across Greenland are worth for men," said the newspaper,
"and for women, and especially not for little girls."

The authorities here said if the Lord Talbot could not bring the Hutchinsons from Greenland a ship would be sent from Denmark. The manager of the colony at Anag-nagalli has been directed to discuss the Americans in every way.

You can buy lower-priced utensils than these
But They won't be "Wear-Ever"

This is 1932... A time to look sharply at what you get for your money, a time to examine quality cheap merchandise of all kinds. For the manufacturing companies behind many articles, which claim to be low in price, are often just as low on the price that cost you.

These are times when known trade-marks, on quality merchandise, mean more than they did three or four years ago. It was easy to buy cheaply two things sold at 1928 and 1929 prices. It is difficult to maintain this quality today at 1932 prices.

"Wear-Ever" Cooking Utensils, however, are made of the same thick, hard steel materials that we have always used. The standard of quality of "Wear-Ever" Cooking Utensils has never been lowered. Your grandmother, your mother, and you have always recognized the "Wear-Ever" trade-mark as a symbol of the finest that can be had in kitchen cooking utensils. To enable you to add to your kitchen some of the same "Wear-Ever" Utensils, and to broaden these thoughts, and "Wear-Ever" quality, is a wide-spread of years, we are continuing our policy of semi-annual sales of special prices.

You can buy cheaper cooking utensils than these. BUT they won't be giving you "Wear-Ever" values in 1932. The maximum COOKING UTENSIL COMPANY, NEW HAVEN, CONNECTICUT.

In accordance with the 12-year-old "Wear-Ever" policy of semi-annual sales for a limited time, these standard "Wear-Ever" Utensils at lowered prices on sale now.

The Right Idea

James J. Walker seems to have been proved wrong on so many things that it is a pleasure to give him a break by admitting that he's right on the matter of following his doctor's orders. While the wrath of the multitude has raged off his thick skin like a shot off an armored car, one word from his personal physician always has been enough to move him thousands of miles.

His "rest" trips are traditional in the list of things that mayors of New York City have been able to get away with. Being a public man, there is, of course, no rest for Mr. Walker unless he gets so far away that his tormentors have to write. In that case he can tear up their letters and preserve his peace of mind. But no matter how inconvenient the trips have been, one searches vainly for evidence that the former mayor ever came close to killing himself in the line of duty.

Now he is off to Europe for another rest—once more at the command of his personal physician. He wants to get away from desks and telephones. He doesn't want to talk about politics. He wants to lie down and relax. As a matter of fact, even though his appearance doesn't give a hint, there are a good many years carefully hidden under the brilliant Walker exterior. They make admirers seem a lot tougher than it used to be in the old days.

But Jimmy Walker ever was a fellow to get plenty of rest, particularly when the going was rough. Now that the going is rougher than it ever has been before—now that New Yorkers are being frankly enthusiastic about the excellence of their new mayor—now that Tammany Hall is wavering in its support, it looks like there would be plenty of rest. It looks, in fact, like permanent relaxation of the Walker career.

Scotland Yard Blows Up

There aren't many illusions left in the world. The few that remain, furthermore, are being carried away as fast as the demolishers can force entrance into the out-of-the-way room where they have been placed for safe keeping.

Misling now is a cherished illusion about Scotland Yard, greatest of the world's agencies for controlling criminals. The name, itself, bland and innocuous, has been endowed with an awful sound, as if a fiend were to be known as Percival Scotland Yard never fails.

Scotland Yard never used to fail, that is. Probably in the books and magazines it will continue to top off crime with unerring precision. But it is slipping. Just as surely as American police have met their match in the bootlegger.

Under the date of Sept. 6, a story was sent to the American press about London's first jewelry store holdup, American style. Assistants were driven into a back room at the point of a pistol, a desperate method unheard of in English crime.

What did Scotland Yard do? Did it catch the criminal quietly, making him wince his spurs in his whistlers? Did it give assurance that it had the situation under control? Far from it; on the contrary, its commissioner issued a windy statement addressed to all citizens and asking them to cooperate with the Yard to make crime more difficult.

The methods it suggested smacked out in the least of the unflattering detective. They were, rather, elementary—and not in the sense of the word that the great Sherlock implied, either. They were about such things as locking doors and windows and not counting money where passersby could see it. This is Scotland Yard of 1932, apparently. What a let-down!

Sympathy

It is easy to sympathize with the attempt of North Carolina petitioners to purge their state university of "drugs and predatory acts" of educators—but exceedingly difficult to understand how they intend to go about it. In a casual examination, they appear to have about as much control over the state as the farmers have over the invasion of locusts. They can put up a fight, but they lose even when they win.

The sad fact is that establishment of a university on modern lines is an invitation to modern ideas. Sigmond Freud, Bertrand Russell, Norman Thomas, Robert Millikan and Langston Hughes may be kept off a campus, in person, but the things they say and preach defy bans and fences. As a matter of fact, it was to secure the result of the North Carolina upset. It would be safe to say that the prescribed gentlemen will enjoy a season of unprecedented popularity on Chapel Hill this semester.

Some come to join in these days; the hand-fed student is more likely to die from under-nourishment than to flourish in ways that are clean and straight. It is up to each one to engage in a frantic period of writing out the bad from the good, with what direction he may be able to obtain from his instructors. It is not surprising that so many emerge with nothing but thin-skinned ideas from the maelstrom, but there are a good many who come away well-equipped. It is for them that the trouble is taken and the money is spent.

The undertaking implies trouble, and lots of it. North Carolina students who are tired of their bachelors with enlightenment have started something they can't stop, unless they want to close up shop entirely. Perhaps that is the only way they could be safe, who do more dangerous things in the air.

As It Should Be

The American people would be deeply disappointed if the campaign plans of the presidential candidates does not provide for Mr. Roosevelt to travel and Mr. Hoover to remain on his job. It would be fitting if 1932 could be made the starting point of a tradition, in this respect.

Voters want to see the challenging candidate. Particularly in the case of Mr. Roosevelt, who is far from being a familiar figure in those sections of the country where voters grow, it is necessary to be conspicuous as many times as possible before November.

Mr. Hoover, on the other hand, could do himself nothing but injury by taking a turn around the country, even in a closely confined area. From many years of public service he is the most familiar figure in public life. As public men go, he is an intimate figure.

In Washington he has a job which demands all the time and skill he can give it. The people like to think that a President seeking reelection is more interested in doing his work well than in getting his job again. Mr. Hoover, consequently, would gain more than he would lose by following his opinion around the country.

The Republican case for reelection stands in terms of a factual record, available to any interested person. The Democratic case must be placed before the people in terms of promises and a candidate who must establish confidence in himself. In or out of agreement with what may be said and done by Mr. Hoover and Mr. Roosevelt, it must be granted that they are conducting themselves in ways calculated to do them a maximum amount of good with a minimum amount of harm.

Britain Marks Time

The manner in which the British government lets this government know that it will not use the option method of postponing its December debt payment adds to the uncertainty surrounding international indebtedness. No attempt is made to hide a marking-time policy.

Thursday of this week is the last date on which the option provided by the Mellon-Baldwin debt agreement for obtaining a partial postponement may be exercised. Otherwise, the payment will fall due the middle of next December. It amounts to approximately one million dollars.

Britain's decision to forego exercise of its contractual right does not mean, however, that the United States will be able to depend on a million dollars in time for Christmas. From informed circles drifts a rumor that postponement will be sought on the principle of mutual benefit. Whatever is done, the larger question of the British debt will not be answered.

Congress, convening early in December for the short session, will have to work fast to decide what it intends to do about an extension of the Hoover moratorium, before it recesses for the Christmas holiday. It would seem. This being a year of political uncertainty, however, it is unlikely that anything definite will be done, regardless of consequences. The responsibility of deciding upon a definite policy for dealing with foreign debts will be passed on to the new congress—perhaps to a new national administration. Great Britain—all of Europe—can not be blamed for marking time when the United States is depending on the same device to stall off the day of reckoning.

Comment of the Press

THE BATTLE REIGNS

The close of labor day gives the signal for the real opening of the presidential campaign. Of course some skirmishing has already occurred on the side lines, but nothing was expected to come of it save a slight gratification to a few ambitious orators. Among these was Mrs. Dolly Gann, who is said to have been reciting a speech that she has meticulously committed to memory. It is so manifestly cut and dried, as lacking in spontaneity, that she is being slowly kept away from microphones and is only permitted to deliver it here and there in small towns, where it is said to have attracted the approval of the "uncomprehending woman voter."

However, in the next two months there will be military glories and vast sums of money will be collected and expended by both parties. One confidently declares he's going to vote for Hoover or Roosevelt, as the case may be, honestly and sincerely. He is merely willing to be a pawn in the chess game of the campaign, signifying to himself and the world that his favorite candidate is elected. It costs the country a great deal to stage this performance every four years, but the politician seems to think it is worth the money.—Newark Advocate.

REAL COURAGE

Clyde Healy, Chillicothe's "local boy who made good" as the world's premier demagogue, demonstrated in the arena of his press agent's demand for beyond that of most of us. But in his visit here Tuesday he displayed another type of courage almost as startling.

In an interview he expressed his dislike for the fake publicity that precedes him wherever he goes, such as the tale to the effect that he would have two new and uninitiated assistants in his act here for the first time.

A figure in the amusement world, built up in the public eye by high-pressure publicity, who dares display the timidity of his press agent! There's brevity of the real "Go ahead, damn the torpedoes!" variety!

Seriously, why should any press agent think Clyde's reputation can be bolstered up better by false stories than by the plain, unvarnished tale of what he does with his big cats day after day?—Columbus Citizen.

THE KINGDOM OF BLAIR

Unquestionably the large majority of radio fans are considerably fed up with the flow of partisan talk broadcast over the ether. And there are rumors that the broadcasting stations are becoming increasingly aware of this bored public attitude.

There are very few figures in the political arena colorful enough to hold the sustained interest of radio listeners in a long-winded speech. There is something about the radio that takes color out of the finest political oratory. The arguments seem cold and lifeless. One reason is the speeches are read. There is none of that spontaneity that gave former-day splendor to the utterances of great orators in the days when speakers met their audiences face to face. Today the interest is impersonal. One hears in other days that a speaker had appeal when he could draw a crowded house to hear him. One is not so sure now. A million listening sets may be tuned in for what a better program to listen to, and then the householder can about their conversation on other diversions, children romp and play, quite unmindful of the political logic being emitted from the loudspeaker.

We feel safe in saying that in a large number of cases most people prefer to listen to a comedian or hear a song. Such entertainment cheers them. At the risk of drawing the law say that the average political speech over the radio is pretty sour.—Toledo Times.

Eye Affliction Cured by Simple Operation.

Within recent years a great deal of scientific research has been devoted to discovering the cause and prevention of cataract. As yet, the cause is unknown. Most authorities believe that the disease is brought about by some chemical change within the body.

It is usually associated with advancing years. As we grow older, deposits of opaque material may occur in the crystalline lens of the eye. This condition produces a haziness of the vision in the afflicted eye.

Cataract is most commonly seen in old age, although it may occur in the young, at birth even. It is often seen accompanying certain general diseases. It is exceedingly common in elderly people suffering from diabetes.

It may follow the taking of certain poisons, such as silver, and sometimes may follow an injury to the eye. The accumulated poisons attack this delicate structure. Cataract may occur as the result of a blow or other injury to the eye. This is called "traumatic cataract." In this type the haziness is due to a rupture of the capsule of the eye. This break permits the watery fluid within the eyeball to enter the crystalline lens, producing cloudiness. Immediate medical attention is necessary in an accident of this sort.

Unfortunately, many a victim of cataract goes on for years, not knowing he can be helped. He may not go to his physician for relief until both eyes are involved. By the time the eyes are so involved, simple operation may be kept from years of partial blindness.

The symptoms of this condition appear so gradually that the true cause may be overlooked. As a rule, there is a gradual decrease of vision without pain or inflammation of the eye.

Cataract is a common belief. Cataract can not be cured by medicine, surgery, drops or other forms of treatment. Surgery is the only means of cure. While there are on the market many alleged cures for cataract, none has been scientifically proved of real value. If a member of the family has a cataract, consult with your physician.

Washington, Sept. 13.—The supreme court of the United States reconvenes on Oct. 3 after a vacation period extending from June 1 to mid-June.

It hardly has been a vacation for the Mr. Justices, however, despite the fact they have been scattered. The work goes on.

Chief Justice Hughes in Quebec at his summer retreat has worked about as hard as he would in his offices at the capitol. There's enough to keep the government's great law mill grinding at all times.

Huge mail sacks bulging with documents are shipped wherever the Mr. Justices may be for preliminary study. Business of the court would soon be delayed were this not so.

ABOUT CO-EDUCATION.

Americans are proud of the fact that they do not separate boys and girls in public schools. They are educated together from kindergarten through university and are allowed every freedom in common work and play.

This, it is believed, makes for a better understanding between the sexes and lays the foundation for a better mutual relationship throughout life.

An interesting criticism of this point of view is made by Ferenczi, Hungarian psychoanalyst. He questions whether this so-called "natural" being together of boys and girls is so "natural" after all. For are they not allowed to enjoy each other's society only within the limits of certain well understood restrictions, which demand of them the suppression of their more direct instinctive interest in each other?

Americans give girls and boys freedom surely, but put them on their honor to behave as nice young people should. Ferenczi wonders whether this continuous necessity for suppression does not put them under a strain that causes emotional conflicts which tend them to be solved in a neurotic manner.

Every one who has worked with boys and girls knows that during a certain period in their development they actually have little use for each other. The boys look at the girls with contempt, and the girls hate the boys.

Only after this stage has been passed through do they again become friendly and evidence mutual attraction. When young people have reached this phase of development it is possible that daily being together in school tends to cause them to regress to the earlier antagonistic stage or to suffer the energy losses attendant on emotional conflict.

THE CASES IN OHIO.

Captain Jonathan Case, father of Lewis, was one of the most prominent public characters who ever looked upon Ohio as home.

Captain Case must have been thirty, for when he came to Ohio he brought with him not only his own land warrant (in part payment for services in the Revolutionary war), but also in all, having bought up such warrants as he could.

The Cases stopped first in Marietta in 1780, but the next year Captain Case located the 1,000 acres that his warrants called for on the Muskingum river near Dresden, and as soon as Lewis finished his law study and was admitted to the bar in 1802, he came to Zanesville and began practicing.

In 1804, Lewis was elected prosecuting attorney, retaining it until he entered the war of 1812 as a colonel.

After the war, he was made governor of Michigan territory and of the rest of his life with but a few absences. Detroit was his home. In 1843 he was the Democratic candidate for President, losing to the Whig, Zachary Taylor, though Lewis carried Ohio. He died just after the Civil war at Detroit, in 1860.

New York Day by Day

BY G. O. MOUTRIE

New York, Sept. 13.—Dwellers among dizzy spires flanking all sides of Central Park has usually looked down upon an entrancing vista in the early morning. The park in the pink of dawn is a fairyland. Artificial lakes wisteria bowers, and meadows all by graveled paths.

There is the sheep pasture and the chaparral, the ancient herder and his faithful collie. In the center the thin pale upshot that is the Egyptian obelisk. Clumps of greenery, rocky out-crops, arched bridges, and that elevated path that circles about the reservoir.

Too, the beautiful Shakespeare garden of flowers in marvelous landscaping, the birds path with its gaily habited riders flashing underneath quaint foot-bridges, and the zoo and its cluster of feathers and furs—all in a magnificent panorama for the city boudoir.

But the pleasure has been changed for the older visitor. Today the scene is enlivened with tragedy. In the park these nights an army of the jobless, the hopeless and beaten, bivouac there, moving off sluggishly when the first streak of light sifts across the eastern sky.

Most of them, heavy with sleep, sink to various catnaps, look furiously about and vanish with the morning mist. There are many who are professionals but the larger number are men, sometimes women, who are having their first experience with the submerged.

Amid Luna's weird fires of illusion was a replica of a coal mine. Its realism was enhanced by the presence of an aged, blind doxy from a West Virginia shaft. A press agent named it Pradjudipok. What Frank O'Malley could have done interviewing Pradjudipok for Dana's Sun in what I still insist was the good old days!

I stopped by one of the two remaining tattoo parlors along the Bowery the other evening. The proprietor, with fiercely brilliant mustaches, reported business brisker than a year ago. He attributed it to the desire of entrants into freak marathons to be tattooed. "Being before the public," he explained, "they like to be faceted up."

Incidentally, there is a celebrated radio, curiously enough, has not only been back to its liberty stage start, but has in one notable instance given a pause stage stage a fresh start on the stage. So extraordinary was his radio success he was booked for 30 weeks on a stage circuit at the biggest salary he ever received.

There are many instances of new careers out of calamity these days when so many are stressing gloom. A clerk in a downtown bond house lost not only his job but his 15 years savings in the same blow. He sold to others. Two years ago when I talked to him he was ready for the river. The other day I saw him in a sportive looking car of implied red. During the tedium of his long lay-off he had devised a toy for his child. A toy concern paid him $10,000 outright for it and he was, two years later, back to work, to think up other things.

And, pardon the personal touch, but it was only after everything else flitted I thought up this quiet adventure in syndication. Not so much, but it's a living!—Copyright, 1932, McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

LOVE—AND OTHER TRIFLES.

Love is like honey. Once you have known and savored the real thing, the imitations not only don't appeal to you any more—they don't even fool you.

In a man's life, the first love affair is a sort of miracle; the second an adventure; the third a commonplace—and all the rest merely episodes.

You may turn a Don Juan or a born bachelor into a husband, and a brunet into a platinum blond—but they are always the same at the roots.

Love is that sudden revelation of feeling which makes a man think that one kind of woman can make him happy for life—simply because he happens to be deeply bored with the other kind.

The only way to make the average man believe that he is ever going to marry, is to lead him right up to the altar and prove it to him.

Steady improvement in the condition of Mrs. Warren G. Harding was such as to forecast her complete recovery from the illness that had carried her almost to death's door, her physicians announced.

Mrs. A. D. Wilhelm entertained a company of friends at a bridal shower at her home on Blaine avenue in honor of her sister, Mrs. Bertha Hart, whose approaching marriage to Clarence Baldard had been announced.

The Worth White club held its first meeting of the season at the home of Mrs. Orley Updegraff on Haver Avenue.

Members of the C. D. & M. Ladies' club were entertained by Mrs. John Fisher at her home on East Fairground street.

Mrs. William West, 50, former Marion county resident, died at her home in Los Angeles, Calif.

The official football schedule for Harding High school was announced by Coach Reed. It was to open Sept. 22 with a game against Richmond and close Nov. 23 with Delaware as the opponent.

Woods To Echo as Hunting Season Opens Thursday

Game wardens are casting their nets at the calendar today to open the hunting season on Sept. 15. This year, however, only 12 days are allowed for the hunt. These dates are: Sept. 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26. There are two seasons in which it is not legal to hunt. The daily bag limit for squirrel this year is four. Red squirrel do not count in this limit, only fox and gray squirrel.

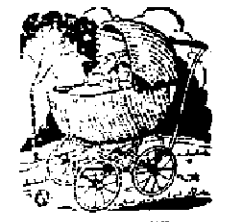

Deputy State Game Protector O. H. Neimeyer of Prospect, has issued information concerning numerous changes in the various game laws for the hunting season. Neimeyer will be glad to advise hunters on various details of the laws not covered here and urges that hunters become familiar with the laws before taking to the woods. Failure to heed the laws will result in prosecution if apprehended.

The open season on ducks, geese, and brant is from Oct. 16 to Dec. 15, inclusive this year instead of from Sept. 16 to Jan. 1 as in former years. Wilson's snipe may be taken from Oct. 1 to Dec. 31, woodcock from Oct. 1 to Nov. 14, and rail and gallinule from Nov. 1 to Nov. 30. There is no open season on wood duck, ruddy duck, buffhead, canvasbacks, cackling goose, and shore birds except Wilson's snipe and woodcock. The daily bag limit for ducks is 15 (but not more than five sidler ducks, nor more than 10 of any one or of all in the aggregate of canvasbacks, redheads, scaup, ringnecks, teal.) 25 in the aggregate, but not more than 15 of any one species; snipe 25, coot 25, Wilson's snipe 20, woodcock, four, mourning doves, 15, band-tailed pigeons, 10. Not more than two days' bag limit of ducks, geese, and brant may be possessed at one time.

Neimeyer has just completed the distribution of 250 pheasants through Marion county. He also released two coons, one each in Tully and Clatsop townships. The coons were obtained from the state farm at Milan, O.

Neimeyer has offered to make public as soon as possible all information concerning changes in hunting laws which may be made during the hunting season. The game laws are subject to change at the order of the state conservation council and changes may be made on short notice.

They were married in July, 1921, according to the petition and have two children. Mrs. Parcel also asks for custody of the children and support for them.

How One Man Lost 22 Pounds

Mr. Herman Hunkis of Detroit writes: "A few lines of thanks from a rheumatism sufferer—my first bottle of Kruschen Salts took all the aches and swellings out of my joints—with my first bottle I went on a diet and lost 22 pounds and now I feel like a new man."

To lose fat SAFELY and quickly take one half teaspoon of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast.

For your health's sake ask for and get Kruschen—the cost for a bottle that lasts 4 weeks is but a trifle at any drugstore in the world and if after the first bottle you are not joyfully satisfied with results—money back. Hunkis & Cooper and all good druggists will be glad to supply you.—Ad.
